

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Mr. Mann reported, that pursuant to the order of the House, Mr. Bradish and himself had waited on the Senate, and had informed them that this House had met, and was ready to proceed to business.

A message from the acting Governor, delivered by his private secretary, was received and read, in the words following, to wit:

GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE, AND OF THE ASSEMBLY:

In compliance with the constitution, I proceed to lay before you the condition of the State, and to suggest for your consideration such matters as I deem conducive to its welfare.

In looking back upon the past year, we see abundant reason to be thankful to Almighty God, for having spared us from the ravages of disease, for having prospered the industry of the country, and for having made us conscious of our national advantages, and content with our condition.

Although in some sections of the State an unusual excitement has prevailed, I am happy to have it in my power to say, that it has not originated in a desire to change our constitution, or in a distrust of the integrity of our laws; but in an honest zeal, overflowing its proper boundaries, misdirected in its efforts, and carrying into public affairs matters properly belonging to social discipline. Such feelings cannot long exist beyond the limits of their proper sphere of action; and it is a source of gratification, that in this instance they give evidence of speedily subsiding into their natural and healthful channel.

One of the most important incidents to a government resting upon the public will, and peculiar to it, is the constant observation of the public eye, and its rigid scrutiny into the conduct of public functionaries; tending to keep them within the limits of their authority, and in the active performance of the duties pertaining to their important trusts. No officer is so high or so humble, as not to be awed by its presence, or to be made conscious of its power. This searching operation is prompt to detect abuses, to discover impure motives, and to expose offenders to the corrective tribunal. Our fellow-citizens are sufficiently enlightened to know all the advantages they enjoy under the government of their choice; they have manifested an increasing attachment to it, and have been conspicuously auxiliary in supporting the laws and constituted authorities, and in promoting measures for improving the condition of the State.

From the period of the adoption of the constitution of the United States, we have progressed in testing the federal system, with cautious steps, under the guidance of instructed public sentiment; and although doctrines have, from time to time, been honestly advanced, and incipient measures taken, at variance with constitutional restrictions, and deemed adverse to the true interests of the people, they have found a prompt corrective in the public voice. During the present Administration, the sound sense, enlightened views, and ardent patriotism of the Executive, leave no room to doubt, that the known landmarks of the Constitution will be respected, that the sovereignty of the States will not be violated, and that measures, warranted by plain constructions only, will be pursued in direct reference to the public good.

We are, happily, at peace with all the world; and relying upon the spirit of justice which has always dictated our dealings with other nations, and continues to influence our national councils, we have great reason to hope that all causes of complaint against foreign powers will be amicably removed, and that we shall not soon be called upon to rally around our national head to enforce our just claims, or resist unjust aggressions. In a state of peace, the financial resources of the general government greatly exceed the amount required for its ordinary expenses; and under a system of strict economy, and with a due regard to so desirable an event, our national debt, which was incurred during the revolutionary and late wars, will, in the course of five or six years at most, be extinguished. Our government will then present a new claim to the affections of its citizens, and to the admiration of the world, founded upon the novel spectacle of a great nation paying off a great national debt.

In the course of my administration, I have been repeatedly called upon to exercise the constitutional power of pardoning convicts. The painful duties connected with that trust, I have endeavored to perform with a due regard to the objects of punishment; and I have, in many instances, been compelled to resist the most earnest and affecting appeals to my sympathy, supported often by petitions signed by the most intelligent citizens, and those whose official stations have given them the best opportunities of knowing the unworthiness of the supplicants. During the past year, there have been four convictions for murder, in each of which executions have taken place: But I have pardoned from the state prison, twenty-eight convicts. Nearly all those pardons were granted in cases, where; first, great doubts of guilt were certified to me by the courts before whom the convictions took place, and those doubts appeared to me to be well founded, on examining a full statement of the cases; secondly, on personal examination, and inquiry of the keepers of the prison and the presiding judges, as to certain convicts for whom petitions had not been presented, I deemed them fit objects of mercy; and thirdly, from want of sufficient latitude of discretion in the courts, sentences too severe were necessarily imposed.

The punishment of criminals is one of the most interesting subjects which can engage the attention of the Legislature; and although our criminal code has been recently very ably revised, and its features much softened, yet I consider it my duty to bring it again to your notice. We have been gradually relaxing the severity of punishments, until our laws relating to them have a decided character of mildness; still it behoves us to consider, whether the great objects of punishment will not be better attained by farther mitigations.

We derive our classification of crimes from the English laws; and many of their distinctions have arisen from the state of society, and the structure and peculiar policy of that government. It is a serious question, whether the moral turpitude of crimes, or the policy of the government, requires that the existing artificial gradations should continue to influence, to their present extent, the punishments prescribed for them.

Our revised code imposes the punishment of death for arson of the first degree; and empowers the court to imprison for life, for certain kinds of rape, mayhem, attempt to poison, arson, burglary, forgery, robbery and murder. I submit to your consideration, whether the punishment by death ought to be extended beyond the crimes of treason and murder; and whether it is politic to imprison for life in any case, except on second conviction. I am persuaded, from observation, that a period of ten years' imprisonment in our best regulated state prisons, is, in most cases, sufficient to subdue the moral, mental or physical faculties of the most obdurate man. An imprisonment for life is rarely, if ever, where the convict's life is not near its natural close, or unexpectedly terminated, carried into effect. The public sympathy becomes awakened in behalf of the most atrocious life convict; and if he is imprisoned on a first conviction, pious and humane hopes are entertained that he is a renewed man, and that the discipline of the prison has purified his heart, and corrected his evil propensities. These considerations are urged with zeal for his pardon, after a brief imprisonment, and have been so far successful, that I can assert from an inspection of the prison books, that there are now in the prison at Auburn comparatively few of that class of convicts, who have served a longer period than five years.

One of the great objects of punishment, is the reformation of the offender. It has been the hope of the philanthropist, and I indulge the belief that it has now become, to a certain extent, the feasible object of the legislator. An amount of punishment which will receive the sanction of public feeling, executed to its full extent, will have a more salutary effect in restraining crime, than greater severity, which enlists public sympathy into the service of those combined outlaws, who make it a part of their operations to procure pardons for their associates in crime. We can indulge but a faint hope of reformation in one, who has suffered a term of punishment in a state prison, without correction of his evil propensities; and the public owes it to the safety of the citizens, to shut out from the world, in most cases for life, those who are returned to prison on second convictions.

As intimately connected with this subject, I earnestly solicit your attention to the condition of our county gaols, and the punishments for petty offences. The greatest defect in our former mode of treating state convicts, was the necessity of imprisoning them, of all ages and grades of crime, in the same room, whereby they mutually contaminated each other; and those who entered fresh in crime, came out adepts in all the arts of mischief. Success has crowned our efforts to correct this evil in our state prisons, by means of separate dormitories, and associated silent labor; but our work will be incomplete until our county gaols cease to be the primary schools of vice. As they are now constructed, the novice, the youthful transgressor, and the merely suspected, are crowded into rooms with the petty convict, the old marauder, the confederate, and the graduate of many prisons. Secluded from observation, and compelled to be idle, they indulge in wicked discourse, and such social vices as are within their means of enjoyment: Here, the arts of accomplishing deeds of villainy are communicated, and illustrated by tales of adventures, and all the captivating minutiae of heroic and eventful lives, until the novice becomes initiated in the mysteries of crime, and waits impatiently for an opportunity to commence a career of wickedness. I submit to your consideration the propriety of enlarging the provisions of the Revised Laws, so as to prepare the way for executing a plan of separating offenders, confined in county prisons on sentences, from those who are committed on suspicion; providing separate dormitories for all; and for the regular daily employment of convicts at some useful trades. By these means, the county expenses of prisons, as well as the amount of crime, would be very much diminished.

The expense to counties, under our present system of supporting convicts in county gaols, is very considerable; and those who have had experience in the proceedings of criminal courts, know, that very inadequate punishments are frequently inflicted for misdemeanors, in consideration of the burdens which a protracted imprisonment imposes.

The convictions for petit larceny, second offence, are very numerous, and constitute a large proportion of the inmates of our state prisons. There are now in the state prison at Auburn eighty-one of that class of convicts (a great proportion of them boys, from twelve to twenty years of age, and blacks, male and female) out of six hundred and twenty-seven—the whole number confined there; and fifty-seven out of five hundred and eighty-four, the whole number of convicts now in the state prison at Sing-Sing. Persons are convicted, a second time, for trifling larcenies, and often sent to the state prison, it is believed, to relieve a neighborhood of a pauper, or of an idle or troublesome person. Should they be included within county arrangements, it might save the state much expense hereafter, in the multiplying or enlarging our magnificent and costly edifices for state convicts.

The evils of county gaols, to which I have alluded, are more apparent in our large cities, where great numbers of all conditions are huddled together in an atmosphere most pestilential in its physical and moral effects. The experiment for remedying these evils, might be made there, and the propriety of extending the principle to other counties, or several associated counties, determined. So far as relates to the punishment of petty convicts, the city of New-York has already erected a building upon this plan.

I advert with great satisfaction to the high state of improvement, and prosperous condition, of our state prisons. That at Sing-Sing is not yet finished, but the prison at Auburn has been in operation a sufficient time to enable us to judge of the influence of our system of prison discipline in reforming offenders, and its bearing upon the finances of the state. The reputation which this system has already acquired, not only with our sister states, but in Europe, is a matter of just state pride; and should stimulate us to further endeavours to aid the cause of humanity at large, by the influence of our example. The radical vice of old prisons is corrected in the plan of our buildings, which are constructed with a separate dormitory for every convict. Workshops are built in long lines. The convicts are employed, during the day, at all the various mechanic arts; and each man may be put to that business which suits his capacity, his health, and former habits of life. They are kept in small companies, constantly under the eye of a keeper, who has charge over them from the time they leave their cells in the morning, until they are returned to them in the evening. A secret avenue surrounds the workshops at Auburn, where, by the means of small glass openings, each convict, as well as the keeper over him, may be seen at any time. Through this avenue, strangers are constantly introduced to see the convicts, and the superior keepers patrol them at pleasure, without the convicts or subordinate keepers being conscious of their presence. The convicts are provided with all the necessaries of life, subjected to reasonable hours of labor, not suffered to speak during the day, and returned at night to solitude and darkness, to reflect upon their past misspent life, and form resolutions for future amendment.

To aid these operations of the mind, the ignorant are instructed by means of suitable schools, and a minister of the gospel, supported by the state, employs portions of his time in visiting and conversing with the convicts, at their cells, and performing divine service with them collectively, at stated times. They enjoy, by regular and suitable alternations of labor and rest, all the comforts which are compatible with their condition. They exhibit a remarkable appearance of health, and work with industry and apparent cheerfulness.—These are the powerful means which are brought to bear upon their reformation, and produce a submissive and penitential state of feeling.

From the old, and long practised culprit, it is vain to expect reform, by human means; but the inquiries which have been judiciously and extensively made, to ascertain the effects of our prison discipline upon those who have been subjected to it, have resulted in establishing the fact, that nearly all who were young, and convicted for first offences, or whose crimes have proceeded from ignorance, intemperance and idleness, have become useful members of society.

The experience of the prison at Auburn, also shows, what has been reasonably doubted heretofore, that the labor of the convicts may be made to supply the expenses of the establishment. During the last three or four years, the earnings of the convicts have produced a surplus, after paying for the supplies and government of the prison; and it is fair to infer, that hereafter the funds of the state will be relieved from that, hitherto, most oppressive burden.

It, however, must not be forgotten, that very much of the success of these establishments depends upon the ability of the persons placed at their head. Thus far the state has been exceedingly fortunate in being able to command the services of gentlemen of the highest respectability and talents.

To preserve what is good, to correct what is evil, to amend where errors have been committed, to know that the officers of the prison are faithful, and that the commissioners and inspectors are attentive and discreet in all things entrusted to them, and to make the two institutions conform to each other, and to place both on the best foundations, I conceive there is a manifest propriety in the legislature appointing, from time to time, a committee from their body to visit both prisons. I recommend it at this time with the more confidence, because it is not a new measure, two such committees having been heretofore appointed, and because the Sing-Sing prison will soon be finished and placed under a new discipline.

Among the preventives, as well as correctives, of crimes, may be placed many of those charitable institutions which owe their origin to the enterprize and liberality of benevolent individuals, with timely contributions on the part of the state. In these efforts, the city of New-York, containing within itself, as well abundant objects of charity, as a great proportion of the population, intelligence, benevolence and wealth of the state, is proudly conspicuous. The infant schools, orphan asylum and house of refuge, are among the most useful of these institutions.

The infant schools are of recent introduction, and although the means of the society are not adequate to the wants of that portion of the destitute who are the objects of their care, yet sufficient has been done to prove its exceeding usefulness. This noble charity is looked upon with great interest by those who feel for suffering humanity, and who have enlightened notions of the effects of early impressions upon the human mind. They receive into these schools the children of the poorest class of the city population, who would probably be overlooked in the great mass of human beings, and be suffered to grow up in ignorance and vice, but for that active charity which seeks to do good. Children are received at the early age of eighteen months, and taken care of during the day, while such of their mothers as are well disposed, pursue their daily labors. None but those who have witnessed the discipline of these schools and its effects, can have an adequate idea of the amount of useful knowledge which can be conveyed, by an ingenious and novel mode of instruction, into the minds of these small children. It is to be hoped that the attention of humane individuals will be more effectively directed to this subject, and that by their contributions, and suitable aid from the legislature, the amiable ladies who have these institutions in charge, may be enabled to extend their care to all who are in a condition to need it.

Benevolent institutions of this kind, properly belong to our great towns. In the country and smaller towns, individual distress becomes known, and is relieved by individual exertions; and there are not usually a sufficient number of persons at leisure, to conduct schools of this description.

Of the same character, and equally creditable to the ladies who patronise and direct it, and equally deserving of public encouragement, is the Orphan Asylum in the city of New-York. Children who are destitute of parents, friends and home, are sought out and placed there, where their natural wants are provided for, and they are instructed in the elements of learning and the principles of good behaviour, until they are of sufficient age to be bound out to proper service.

The House of Refuge was established by an association for the reception of juvenile vagrants and delinquents, and receives minor convicts from every part of the state. They are there kept under a strict and wholesome discipline, and are instructed in trades, and in the rudiments of education, until they are sufficiently reformed to be bound out or discharged.

These institutions, together with the several kindred establishments in other cities and large towns, many of which are entitled to equal commendation, and the numerous charity and Sunday schools throughout the state, are exerting a great power in the prevention of pauperism and crime. In this country, where labor is well rewarded, and the means of comfortable, nay luxurious subsistence, are within the reach of every one not disabled by disease or old age, it is manifest that the greater part of pauperism and crime results from idleness and intemperance, and that want of instruction and bad example are the primary causes of these vices. The institutions which I have noticed, strike at the root of the evil. Most of them have been liberally patronized by the state, and some of them have received all the aid which their exigencies demand.

Among the numerous other charitable institutions which adorn the city of New-York, those for the education of the deaf and dumb, and for the care and restoration of insane persons, stand conspicuous. They have been cherished by the legislature, and will not cease to be interesting objects of its regard. But it is deserving of consideration, whether the poor of the latter class are sufficiently provided for by our laws.

By the census of 1825, it was ascertained that there were at that time, eight hundred and nineteen insane persons in this state. Of these, two hundred and sixty-three were of sufficient ability to pay for their own support; two hundred and eight were in gaol or supported by charity; leaving three hundred and forty-eight insane paupers at large, a terror to others, and suffering, in addition to mental derangement, all the privations attending penury and want. The condition of those under poor-house regulations, or confined in gaols, is, if possible, worse. No person of sensibility can look upon those sufferers, in their small cells, surrounded by a bad atmosphere, sometimes chained to the walls, and witness their dejected or wild despairing looks, or frantic madness, without a feeling of horror. No restoration can be hoped for under such circumstances; indeed the instances are not rare, of persons slightly deranged, becoming incurable maniacs by these injudicious means. The contrast of their condition, with those in the Lunatic Asylum in New-York, is very striking. In the latter place, every thing is spacious, cleanly and pleasant to the eye—the inmates are suffered to be at liberty, and range in the open air, in an enclosed yard—they are treated with kindness, and their innocent whims indulged. The consequence is, that many who are placed there, are restored to reason, and discharged after a short period, to enjoy the society of their friends. It speaks much in favor of the ability of the keepers, attendants and superintendents of that interesting institution, that during my visit there last summer, but one out of sixty or seventy, then under their care, was in close confinement.

But that institution is not designed for general charity. It receives those only who are able to pay for their support, and such paupers as are sent by the authorities of the several towns, and paid for out of the poor fund, at a certain price, stipulated by law. I submit to your consideration, the propriety of establishing an asylum for the gratuitous care and recovery of that most destitute class of the human family, who are suffering from a darkened understanding and the evils of poverty at the same time. While roaming at large, they are dangerous to the personal safety of the citizens, and many crimes of the deepest die, have been excused, on the plea of mental alienation. The ties of natural affection frequently impel relatives who are struggling with poverty themselves, to afford that relief which is a public rather than a private duty.

Our poor laws, originally founded upon the English system, were pregnant with all its evils. Conflicts between towns, relative to the settlement of the poor, were accompanied by expensive litigations; paupers were suffered to idle at private lodgings; and those whose decrepitude demanded care and kindness, frequently suffered from neglect and cruelty, without the means of redress.

A few years since, an entire revision of the system took place. Counties were authorised by law to purchase farms, and erect houses upon them, for the reception and employment, so far as they were able to work, of all the poor of the county. The distinction between county and town poor, and all the regulations for the transportation and settlement of the poor, were abolished. Many counties have made the experiment, and I am persuaded, that the tendency of the new regulations has been to keep idlers away from situations where they are exposed to a rigid superintendence, and compelled to work: to provide better for the sick and disabled; and to lessen very much the expense of supporting the poor. The reports, which the revised laws require the county superintendents to make to the secretary of state, I hope will present such a favorable view of the new system, as to induce the legislature at no distant day, to render the adoption of it imperative upon all the counties.

A sense of the importance of common education, has been strongly manifested by the legislature, in setting apart an ample fund for that purpose. An enlightened people will not live under a government where their rights are unnecessarily abridged; and a free government cannot be maintained by an ignorant population. The enlightened mind, while it discerns the truth, looks with indulgence upon the errors of opinion, religious, political or social, which others may entertain; and in our government, where every measure depends upon the public voice, our reliance must be placed upon the general intelligence of the people, for exemption from those civil disorders which have put a short period to the duration of free governments, in whatever other nation or time they may have existed. But I need not press this subject.

The capital of the common school fund consists of one million six hundred and sixty-one thousand and thirty-one dollars, in stocks and other securities; and eight hundred and thirty-nine thousand acres of land. The productive fund is augmented annually, by the sale of those lands, and sufficiently to meet the increasing demands upon it. I regret to say, that the principal of the fund has sustained a diminution, during the past year, of fifty thousand dollars, by the failure of the Middle District Bank. The revenue for distribution the ensuing year, is estimated at one hundred and nine thousand nine hundred and eighty-one dollars.

The common school system is yet in its infancy : and as the attention of the legislature will be constantly directed to it, as one of the primary interests of the state, the defects which experience points out will in time be remedied by their wisdom. The returns for the past year shew, that school districts have been organized in almost every neighborhood in the state, amounting in the whole to eight thousand eight hundred and forty-seven ; and that eight thousand two hundred and seventy have made returns according to law. Two hundred and thirty-eight new districts have been formed ; and the districts which have made returns, exceed by one hundred and six those of the previous year. The aggregate number of children over five and under sixteen years of age, in the districts which have made returns, is four hundred and sixty-eight thousand two hundred and fifty-seven ; and four hundred and eighty thousand three hundred and twenty-five children have been taught an average time of eight months during the year. The increase of children between the ages of five and sixteen, in the same districts, is nineteen thousand one hundred and forty-four ; and the increase in the number instructed, is twelve thousand one hundred and twenty.

The public money paid to the school districts during the past year, is two hundred and fourteen thousand eight hundred and forty dollars. Of this sum, one hundred thousand dollars was paid from the revenue of the school fund ; and the residue was derived from a tax upon the towns, and particular funds possessed by some of them. In addition to this amount, there has been paid in the several districts, two hundred and ninety-seven thousand and forty-eight dollars ; making a total of five hundred and eleven thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight dollars paid for teachers' wages alone, in the common schools of the state.

The want of competent teachers is a difficulty which has always been experienced, and still exists. To devise a remedy, is well worthy of further efforts. The course of education might be advantageously varied under competent teachers, by introducing among the early studies of children, those elements of the natural sciences, which are easily comprehended by means of sensible illustrations, and which impart a knowledge of things useful in agricultural and mechanical pursuits.

Our state has not been unmindful of its institutions for instruction in the higher departments of literature. The revenue from a literature fund is annually distributed to our academies ; and of our four colleges, three have been amply endowed. Those in New-York and Schenectady continue in a flourishing condition ; and that at Clinton, in Oneida county, exhibits symptoms of reviving energies. The college at Geneva, which has received no other favor from the state than its charter, has been laboring under peculiar difficulties for the last two or three years ; but hopes are entertained that it will recover, and it has at this time an increased number of students. The classical learning taught in these seminaries is a useful preparation for the learned professions, polishes and refines society, and sheds a lustre upon the country. As its attainment is generally sought by the more wealthy, it does not need that fostering care of the government, which is indispensable to the dissemination of common learning, yet no wise government will be insattentive to its wants. I notice with peculiar pleasure the various private schools for instruction in the higher branches, established by individual enterprize, in several parts of the state. They ask no aid from the government; are generously patronized by the public; and are, for the most part, conducted by gentlemen of high characters and great literary attainments. Their multiplication and success afford evidence that the profession of teaching is taking that elevated rank in society, to which it is entitled by the importance of its duties.

Our medical colleges, established by the authority of the state, at Fairfield and New-York, continue under the care of learned and talented professors, and are rising in the public estimation. At Fairfield there are now one hundred and sixty students attending lectures; one hundred and thirty-eight of that number are from various parts of this state, eight from the New-England states, nine from Canada, three from Pennsylvania, one from North Carolina, and one from New-Jersey. The whole number at New-York is one hundred and seventeen. Under judicious regulations, and the protection of the state, there is reason to believe that the usefulness of these colleges will increase, and that they will speedily rival the most flourishing institutions in the country.

The great interests of agriculture and manufactures, have strong claims upon your attention. A state of the world is fast approaching, if it has not already arrived, in which it will be necessary for us to supply our wants by our own industry. International commerce will be restricted to fewer, or other articles; and our pursuits must necessarily be more diversified. To increase the variety of productions, and thereby enlarge the materials for internal trade, is an object worthy of the paternal care of the government. Our soil and climate are adapted to the cultivation of many articles of great commercial value, which have not hitherto come within the range of agricultural operations, for want of a knowledge of the process for producing them. The most important of these are the articles of silk, wines and hemp. They have all been partially attempted in this latitude of our country, with great success.

Among the matters of interest relating to this subject, and which promise to satisfy the desires of those patriotic individuals, who have labored to introduce more science into practical agriculture, I notice, with pleasure, the dawnings of a scientific agricultural education. A school for that purpose is established in Oneida county, which has placed itself in the class of literary institutions under the care of the regents of the university. Students are there instructed in scientific and practical agriculture; are compelled to go through all its manual operations, and pay for their instruction by their labor. A principal, similar in some respects, is introduced into the polytechny at Chittenango, founded by and under the superintendance of Doctor Yates. In his school, which is designed to carry a pupil through all the sciences, he has provided for the instruction of such youth in the principles of husbandry, and other branches of education, as will volunteer to labor for their tuition and support. It is also deserving of notice, that he has admitted the students to a share in the government of his school. He has established a miniature legislature for passing laws, and courts for trying offenders, where all the forms of election, legislation and judicial proceedings, are observed. The students are represented in one branch of their legislature; the faculty form another, and the principal has a veto. A judge is appointed from among the officers, to preside in the court, for the trial of offences against their laws, with an appeal from the decisions of the court to the faculty and principal.

The general fund, on the 30th day of November 1828, consisted of the following items, to wit:

Canal stock bearing an interest of 5 per cent, .....	$280,000 00
Bank stock, (deducting $15,000 lost by the failure of the Hudson bank,) .....	112,740 00
Bonds and mortgages for lands sold,.....	818,826 00
Do for loans to individuals and others, .....	395,100 00
Do for sundry debts due the State, .....	23,319 00
Total,.....	$1,629,985 00

The estimate of revenue from this fund, for the year ending 30th November 1829, was $172,550, including the following items, which were not revenue, but capital, to wit:

Principal to be received on bonds and mortgages on lands sold,.....	$30,000 00
Do on loans, .....	20,000 00
To be received on first payment for lands, .	5,000 00
	<hr/> 55,000 00

Leaving the estimate of income, only ..... $117,550 00

The estimate of expenses for the same year, ending November 30th, 1829, was ..... 291,500 00

Thus it appears that the expenses of that year, as estimated, would exceed the income of the general fund 173,950 00

To meet the claims upon the treasury, and the expenses of the government for the year 1829, the canal stock belonging to the general fund ($280,000) has been sold; and that fund is indebted to the literature and school funds to the amount of $158,865.

The amount of bank stock has been also diminished $20,000, by the failure of the Columbia bank, during the past year; as it is supposed that the capital of the bank has been entirely lost.

The items which now compose the general fund, are:

Bonds and mortgages for lands sold, .....	$806,313 00
Loans to individuals and others,.....	386,895 00
Sundry debts due the State, .....	23,319 00
And available bank stock, .....	92,740 00

Making the total amount of the productive capital of the general fund, ..... $1,309,267 00

There is also about 120,000 acres of land belonging to the general fund ; but most of this land has been bought in for taxes, and is of little value. About 26,000 acres is all from which the State can expect to receive avails, in aid of the treasury.

The State owes no debt, except on account of the canals.

The ordinary expenses of the government for the ensuing year, are estimated at two hundred and sixty-four thousand dollars ; to which is to be added one hundred and fifty-eight thousand three hundred and sixty-five dollars and fourteen cents, the amount due from the general fund to the literature and common school funds ; making an aggregate of four hundred and twenty-two thousand three hundred and sixty-five dollars and fourteen cents. The means to meet these demands, consist of the avails of the contemplated sales for taxes, interest payable on bonds and mortgages, miscellaneous sources of revenue, and the balance in the treasury, the whole of which are estimated at three hundred and six thousand three hundred and ninety-three dollars and fifty-six cents ; shewing a deficit of one hundred and fifteen thousand nine hundred and seventy-one dollars and fifty-eight cents. To meet which, resort may be had to the sale of the bank stock, ninety-two thousand seven hundred and forty dollars, and so much of the principal of the bonds and mortgages as can be collected.

On the 30th November 1826, the general fund amounted to ..... $2,637,936 00
And the balance in the treasury on that day, including the last receipt into the treasury from the half mill tax, (amounting to $147,534,) applicable to the ordinary expenses of the government, was..... 264,246 00

This balance was reduced on the 30th of November 1827, to the sum of $115,028 : Showing a consumption that year, beyond the revenue arising from the general fund received into the treasury, of $149,218.

The deficiencies in the revenue since the year 1827, have been supplied, solely, from the balance then in the treasury, and by the consumption of the principal of the general fund.

On the 30th November 1828, the balance in the treasury had been expended ; $20,000 of the canal stock, belonging to the general fund, had been sold and expended ; and the treasury was indebted $68,837, for the expenses of the preceding year.

The consumption in the year 1828, beyond the receipts into the treasury, was as follows, to wit :

Balance in the treasury 30th November, 1827,.....	$115,028 00
Canal stock sold, .....	20,000 00
Claims upon the treasury, .....	68,837 00
<hr/>
Making.....	$203,865 00

From the above causes, and by legislative acts in 1827, transferring Canal stock to the literature fund, .....	$150,000 00
Bank stock to the school fund, .....	100,000 00
The balance of the loan of 1786 to ditto,.....	33,616 00
By the sale of the Seneca lock navigation stock,.....	23,218 00
And by the receipts of the principal of debts for lands sold, 32,427 00
Total,.....	$339,261 00

And by the subsequent receipts of the principal of debts, the general fund is now reduced as above stated, to the sum of one million three hundred and nine thousand two hundred and sixty-seven dollars ; leaving claims upon the treasury for the balance of expenditures for the last year, to a considerable amount.

By the foregoing brief view of our finances, it will be seen that the general fund is rapidly diminishing ; that our reliance for meeting future calls upon the treasury, to defray the current expenses of the government is principally upon the government debtors ; and that an active collection of those debts must be immediately commenced. If taxation is delayed a few years, the general fund will be entirely exhausted, and it will be necessary then to provide by tax, for the whole amount of the annual expenditures.

I have thought it my duty to lay this statement of the condition of the treasury before you, for the purpose of submitting to your consideration, whether it is good economy, whether it is compatible with the duty which the government owes to a progressive improvement of the condition of the state, to exhaust the general fund, and rely, in future, entirely upon direct taxation for the means to defray the annual expenses of the government, to give effective aid to necessary charities, to advance the interests of knowledge, to multiply the objects of industry, to facilitate the means of internal communication and commerce, and to perform those other acts of sovereignty which a government owes to the prosperity of its citizens and to its own glory.

This is an interesting crisis in the affairs of our state, and a heavy responsibility rests upon the present, and upon the immediately succeeding legislatures. Our funds are diminishing to a point, while an extensive view of great national prosperity is opening upon us. We may enter and possess ourselves of its realities, or by a timorous, hesitating and narrow policy, it may pass by us as an unsubstantial vision.

Our state has doubled its population within the last twenty years, and has quintupled since 1790. In that year it formed less than a tenth of the population of the United States ; it now forms a seventh : thus showing that it has increased in population beyond all example, and more rapidly than its proportion of the astonishing increase of the population of the United States. Although, like its sister states upon the Atlantic border, it is pouring its thousands and tens of thousands into the great central valley of the west, its own increase has not been materially retarded. It has now a population not far from one million nine hundred thousand, and is capable of sustaining at least eight millions of souls. And when we contemplate those changes in the pursuits of industry, which tend to compress us into more dense communities, and consider our capacities for abundant productions within a small compass, in the fertility of our soil, in the riches of our mines, and in our hydraulic facilities, we have great reason to believe, that the time is yet distant, when, under a judicious administration of affairs, a decline in the ratio of increase of wealth and population will be discernible. Is it not our duty, by a wise forethought, to lay the broad foundations of a policy, adapted not only to our present condition, but fitted to sustain the state in her future progress to a glorious maturity?

A system of progressive improvements, by means of rail-roads and canals, has become engrafted upon the policy of our state, and should be kept steadily in view. The benefits which their construction will confer, depends upon the prudence of the legislative enactments concerning them.

The funds which have, thus far, been applied towards the reduction of the interest and principal of the Erie and Champlain canal debt, have been derived from tolls, from the duties on auctions, and salt manufactured within the state. These funds were appropriated by the law, authorising the construction of these canals, and have always produced more than enough to pay the interest. They are guaranteed by the constitution, and cannot be diverted to any other purposes, until the objects of their appropriation are fulfilled. The demands upon these funds for the payment of interest and repairs, and other expenses, although considerable, will be satisfied, and still leave a large annual surplus, applicable to the extinguishment of the principal; and we have the pleasing prospect, that in a few years that debt will be entirely extinguished.

The payment of the debt, however, may be retarded by various causes: The carrying may be diverted into other channels—more serious repairs may be necessary than have been experienced or expected—new locks and double locks, and other facilities for expediting transportation, may become indispensable—a change may be wrought in the policy of our laws, materially affecting the duties—and when the debt is paid, or nearly so, modifications of the tolls, and of the salt and auction duties, may be deemed politic, just and necessary.

Our funds, however, applicable to the extension of our public works, may be augmented, at no distant day, from a new source.—The duties upon the importation of merchandize are secured by the constitution of the United States, to the general government, and have been its great source of revenue for all purposes. In a very few years, the national debt will be paid off, and as but a small portion of the revenue will be consumed in conducting the affairs of the Union, within the constitutional limits, and as there are prudential reasons for continuing the duties to a certain extent, there can be no valid objection to the distribution of the surplus revenue among the states, to be disposed of at their discretion. If constitutional obstacles exist against the measure, they may be removed by constitutional means.

During the last session of the legislature, laws were passed directing surveys and estimates to be made in reference to the construction of the Chenango, Chemung, and Crooked Lake canals, and authorising the canal commissioners to construct them on certain conditions. The officers who have made examinations in relation to these contemplated works, will furnish you with such information as will enable you to act understandingly, and adopt such further measures as may be required.

The loan of the credit of the state to the Hudson and Delaware canal company, last winter, by authorising issues of stock to the amount of three hundred thousand dollars, I am happy to state, has enabled that company to complete their work. They have sold fifty-eight thousand dollars of the stock, and pledged the residue for money borrowed, except thirty-seven thousand dollars, which they have not needed. They commenced transporting coal in October, and on the 19th day of December last, had delivered, at tide water, on the Hudson, seven thousand tons, of a good quality, which was immediately sold at from seven dollars and fifty cents to eight dollars per ton. The company is now making arrangements to transport the next season, upon their rail-road and canal to the Hudson, three hundred and sixty tons per day, which, I am assured, they will be able to sell to purchasers at reduced prices.

During the session of 1818, the Governor was authorised to settle the claims of the state against the United States, for aid of various kinds afforded them during the late war. Negotiations were entered into, and considerable repayments were made on that account, although claims to a considerable amount remain to be adjusted. Further negotiations were suspended by the repeal of that law in 1826. There is, however, an acknowledged balance on the property account, for arms and equipments. It would be desirable to receive that balance in field ordnance for the supply of the artillery companies, forty of which are now destitute, and our arsenals do not possess the means of supplying their wants. It is submitted to your consideration, whether you will authorise the negotiations to be renewed for that purpose.

At the same time, another matter of much moment might be made the subject of negotiation.

The fortifying the harbor of the city of New-York, the commercial emporium, not only of the state, but of the nation on the eastern border, is of the first importance in case of war, and has attracted the attention of the general government, which is now erecting a very strong work, Fort Hamilton, on the eastern side of the Narrows. The outer defence of that harbor will not be complete, until a similar erection is made on the opposite side; and I perceive that the government contemplate a work there, as part of their cordon of defence for the sea-board. During the late war, the state expended at least three hundred and fifty thousand dollars on works at that point, known as the fortifications on Staten-Island, which were never entirely finished, and are now in a state of decay. The advanced state of other similar public works, and the prosperous condition of the finances of the general government, indicate the present as a favorable time to treat for the sale of those works to the government. By an act of 1818, the Governor was authorised to institute a negotiation for the sale of those fortifications, and the lands connected therewith, and was directed to report to the legislature. Nothing effectual was done under that law. In 1826, a survey and map, and estimate of their value, were directed to be made. It is submitted to your consideration, whether further legislation on that subject is not expedient.

By a law of the last session, the person administering the government was authorised to treat with the first christian party of the Oneida Indians, and the Orchard party of the same tribe, for the purchase of their lands; and to appoint an agent to accompany such of them as should choose to emigrate, to Green Bay. Under this law, the late Governor concluded a treaty with the first christian party, for the purchase of a portion of their lands; and at an early period of the summer, I appointed an agent, who accompanied a large party of them, and saw them comfortably settled. After his return, and in the month of September last, I concluded a treaty with the same party for the purchase of the residue of their lands. It is supposed that the remainder of the people of that party will emigrate to Green Bay, in the course of the next summer.

By these purchases, we have become possessed of about three thousand four hundred and seventy acres of valuable land in the heart of the State, which will soon be put into useful cultivation by respectable freeholders; and have removed thereby, from a state of temptation and misery, to a situation better fitted to their natural habits and the improvement of their condition, a small degenerated remnant of a once formidable and heroic race. It is to be hoped, that those who remain will be tempted, by the improved condition of their brethren, soon to follow their example.

In fulfilment of the duty imposed upon me by the act of the last session, to create a fund for the benefit of the creditors of certain monied corporations, I have designated the first Monday in February next; as the day for the meeting of the delegates of the several banks, at the city of New-York, and the village of Auburn, to appoint bank commissioners under that law.

The provisions of the law have received the decided approbation of the public; and it is to be regretted that it has not been satisfactory to all the existing banks. Those in the city of New-York are the principal complainants; although I learn from other parts of the State, that the severity of those provisions in the revised laws, which are made, by reference, part of the general law of last winter; will tend to weaken, rather than strengthen the public security, by driving men of character and responsibility from the direction. I have reason to believe that the banks in New-York are now prepared to relinquish their opposition to the safety fund and supervision, and accept their charters, provided a modification of the harsh features of the revised statutes can be obtained, and the local tax, now imposed directly upon the banks, be withdrawn, or placed upon the stockholders.

The provisions of the revised statutes, from sections eleven to seventeen inclusive, were adopted previous to, and without reference to the general law, and were supposed to contain within themselves the best security to the community. It is worthy of consideration, whether the law of last winter, creating a safety fund, and a board of visiting and examining commissioners, does not afford all the guarantee for the soundness of bills, which it is in the power of legislation to devise.

If an application should be made on the part of the city banks, your sense of their intimate connexion with the prosperity of the city, and their importance to the commercial operations of the State, will unquestionably induce you to give to it a favorable consideration.

The unfortunate controversy between this State and New-Jersey, respecting the boundary line, still continues to excite much feeling, and has been productive of some violence between citizens of the respective states. To bring the question of right to a legal decision, New-Jersey has seen fit to institute a suit against this State in the United States court. I have employed able counsel to assist the attorney-general; and they, on consultation, have come to the conclusion, that under existing laws, that court cannot take cognizance of the cause, and have therefore declined to appear. It is certainly desirable that this source of irritation between us and our sister State, should cease to exist; and I respectfully submit to your wisdom to devise suitable measures for its removal. I send you herewith the attorney-general's report on that subject.

One of the suits instituted on the claim of John Jacob Astor against the grantees of the State in Putnam county, was tried in the circuit court of the United States, held during the month of October last, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff. A case has been made to be submitted to the supreme court, embracing many questions of law, upon which the counsel for the State have hopes of a favorable issue. The cause is expected to be brought to a hearing at the opening of the court in January; and from its importance, I have deemed it necessary to direct the attorney-general, whose report is herewith transmitted, to attend the argument at Washington.

The Revised Statutes went into full operation on the first day of the present month. Their recent enactment will relieve you, for the present, from much legislation on general subjects. Our laws are now clothed in plain language, collated and arranged under proper heads, amended in many respects, and put into a shape adapted to long continuance. This revision has been perfected with great industry and ability, and is highly creditable to the distinguished gentlemen who were charged with it, and to the legislative bodies which passed upon and adopted the result of their labors.

Our late Governor, whose administration, although of short duration, has left its impress upon our public policy, presented forcibly to the consideration of the last Legislature, the propriety of laws to prevent the corrupting tendency of the use of money at elections. A law was passed in pursuance of his suggestions, which has had the most salutary effect. We cannot begin too early to surround our elective franchise with defences against the approach of impurity. The example of good men, with occasional amendments of the law, and a strict enforcement of its penalties, will, I am confident, produce the desired results.

I cannot close this communication, without referring to an illustration of the virtuous tendency of our representative system, and the corrective energy of public opinion. I can speak of it without reproach, as it is a part of the public history of our legislation, that at a former period, individuals congregated for the sake of pecuniary gratifications, and forced their services upon those who had legislative grants in view, and endeavored, by their combined efforts, to control the passage of laws. Encouraged by their numbers, they openly boasted of an influence which they did not possess, and frequently threw a suspicion upon the purity of individual members. They have not appeared, embodied, for several years; and it is the strongest proof of their entire dispersion, that the whole subject of rechartering the banks, and revising our monied institutions, was acted upon at the last session, without the least suspicion of improper extraneous influence.

SIR,

I take the liberty of again calling your attention to the unfortunate controversy relative to the boundary line between this State and the State of New-Jersey. Since the close of the last session of the Legislature, a new interest has been given to that question, by an attempt to bring it before the supreme court of the United States for adjudication. A bill has been exhibited in that court by the State of New-Jersey, against the People of the State of New-York; and in June last, a copy of the bill, with a subpoena to appear and answer, was served upon the acting Governor of this State; and a like service was made upon the Attorney-General. The appearance day was in August last; but it is understood that no order has been made, founded upon that service.

It has been made the duty of the Attorney-General in a number of cases, to defend the interests of the State, when drawn into controversy: but a suit directly against the State does not appear to have been, at any time, contemplated by the Legislature; and no provision has been made upon that subject. This fact alone would have been sufficient to prevent me from entering an appearance for the State, unless directed to do so either by the executive or legislative department of the government. But in relation to this suit, there is another consideration of a more important character than the one already mentioned.

I allude to the question of jurisdiction. Neither at common law, nor upon principle recognized by courts of equity, could a state or independent government be impleaded in a court of justice. The authority for instituting this suit must, therefore, be sought for in the constitution and laws of the United States.

By the Constitution, Art. III. section 1, it is declared, that "The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish." And the second section of the same article declares, (among other things,) that "The judicial power shall extend to controversies between two or more States." Although the constitution provided for the vesting of the judicial power of the United States, and defined its limits, that power could not be carried into execution, until suitable provisions for that purpose had been made by Congress. It was obviously necessary that laws should be enacted for organizing the supreme court, by declaring the number of judges of which it should consist, and providing for the times and places of its meeting, and for ordaining and establishing tribunals inferior to that court. And in relation to all the courts of the United States, it was necessary that process should be given for bringing before them the persons who might be impleaded; and the means of enforcing their judgments: or in other words, it was necessary that laws should be passed, to enable the courts to carry their respective jurisdictions into execution. The framers of the constitution did not overlook this necessity: and that instrument, among the many other powers bestowed upon Congress, declares, (Art. I. section 3, paragraph 17,) that "The Congress shall have power to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or office thereof."

In pursuance of this provision, and in reference to the judicial power of the government, the first Congress proceeded to organize and establish the courts of the Union; to assign to each (so far as that matter had been left to the discretion of the legislature) the jurisdiction it should exercise; to fix their terms; to provide them with process, as well to bring parties before them, as for enforcing their judgments; and proper ministerial officers for executing their mandates. In other words, necessary and proper laws were made "for carrying into execution" most of the judicial power of the government. These laws have from time to time been made the subject of revision and amendment by Congress, in the same manner as other subjects of legislation.

It then becomes important to consider whether Congress has at any time provided for the exercise of that portion of the judicial power which extends "to controversies between two or more states." It has already been remarked, that at the common law, a state or independent government could not be sued: it was therefore necessary, in providing for the exercise of this new and extraordinary jurisdiction created by the constitution; that the courts should be furnished with process adapted to the character of the party to be impleaded; that the mode of serving it should be defined, and that the means should be provided of enforcing the decree or judgment. No such laws have been made by Congress; and I entertain the decided opinion that the supreme court of the United States cannot take judicial cognizance of this controversy, in the form of a suit between the two States. And I am authorised to say that this is also the opinion of Mr. Bleecker and Mr. Butler, the gentlemen with whom I have the honor to be associated as counsel for the State.

There are other difficulties in the way of maintaining this suit, which I have not deemed it important now to mention: and in relation to the one suggested, I have given but a very brief view of the grounds upon which it rests.

There is reason to believe that the opinion very generally prevails among enlightened statesmen and jurists in different parts of the Union, that the supreme court of the United States cannot exercise jurisdiction in such a case. And one ground for this remark will be found in the fact, that although this controversy, and others of a similar character, have long existed, no attempt has been made within the last thirty years to make them the subject of judicial investigation in the form of a suit against a State.

That the State of New-Jersey, through her public agents, has regarded this question in the same light, appears to me to be quite evident. On the tenth day of January, 1822, one of her senators in Congress introduced into the Senate of the United States, "A bill prescribing the mode of commencing, prosecuting and deciding controversies between two or more states." An abstract of the provisions of this bill, will shew how very delicate and difficult a subject this was deemed to be, by those who were in favor of bringing this power into existence.

Section 1, provided, "that in all cases where any matter of controversy now exists, or hereafter may exist, between states, in relation to jurisdiction, territory or boundaries, or any other matter which may be the proper subject of judicial decision, it shall be lawful for the State deeming itself aggrieved, to institute against the State of which it complains, a suit or suits in the supreme court of the United States, by bill, in the nature of a bill in equity," &c.

Section 2, provided, that such suits should be brought, prosecuted and defended in the legal and proper names of such states respectively.

Section 3, provided, that no such suit should be commenced or prosecuted "without the order or direction of the Legislature of the State suing;" a copy of which was to be filed in the office of the clerk of the court; and the Legislature was to appoint some fit person or persons to manage the prosecution.

Section 4, provided, that the State made a defendant, should be notified by the service of a certified copy of the bill of complaint and all documents, upon the governor or chief executive officer of the defendant State: and a notification was also to be served by the marshal on the Legislature of the defendant State, at the same time of serving a copy of the bill; and the marshal was to make return of such service.

Section 5, provided that no person should be permitted to act for the defendant State, unless legally authorised by the Legislature thereof as manager; and not until the instrument or document conferring the power, should be filed with the clerk of the court.

Section 6, provided that the defendant State might answer within one year after such notification; which time might be enlarged by the court on cause shown.

Section 7, made valid the acts of the persons authorised to prosecute or defend, and authorised the service of papers upon such managers.

Section 8, authorised the court to appoint commissioners for the purpose of ascertaining boundary lines.

Section 9, applied to general principles of law and equity in other cases, to proceedings under this act.

Section 10, provided that one year after the defendant State should have filed an answer, the court might proceed to hear and determine the matters in controversy.

Section 11, provided, that in case no answer should be filed within the time limited, the court should, on motion, award against the manager of the defence, and if none had been appointed, against the Legislature of the defendant State, a rule to shew cause why the court should not proceed to take and consider the bill as true, and decree accordingly.

Section 12, provided that the court, at the next term after the service of such rule to show cause, might, in case of default, proceed to a decree.

Section 13, gave costs to the succeeding party.

Section 14, prescribed the mode of ascertaining those costs.

Section 15, directed a certified copy of any decree to be made in pursuance of that act, to be delivered to the Governor, or chief executive officer of the state, against which such decree was pronounced, with a request from the court that such decree might within a reasonable time be executed. And the court were authorised to carry the decree into full effect : to issue a mandate, or warrant, to the marshal for that purpose ; and the marshal was authorised to carry the decree into execution—to command and receive assistance and to use force if necessary.

This bill is said to have received very little favor in the Senate : and it is believed that a large majority of that body were averse to bringing into exercise a power accompanied with so many difficulties, and which might tend in its execution, to more serious evils than those to be anticipated from the want of a common arbiter between independent states.

On the eleventh day of December, 1828, a similar bill was brought into the Senate of the United States, by one of the senators from Rhode-Island. The first fourteen sections of which were copied from the bill introduced in 1822. The fifteenth section directed a copy of the decree to be delivered to the Governor, or chief executive officer of the State, against which the decree should be made, with a request from the court that the same might, in a reasonable time, be executed : but the bill contained no provision whatever for carrying the decree into execution, if such state should not comply with the request of the court.

Another section (the 16th) was added to this bill, which provided that it should be in force for five years next after the passing thereof, and to the end of the current session of Congress in which the said five years should expire, and no longer.

It seems but a just reflection upon the two last mentioned features of this bill, that those who advocated a provision for carrying this extraordinary power into execution, were either unwilling themselves to contemplate the results of a forcible execution of the judgment of the court ; or that they entertained no hope of obtaining the approbation of Congress to such a measure. And even without any provision for giving the aggrieved party the fruits of his recovery, the sixteenth section gave to the whole bill the character of a mere experiment.

A further evidence of the opinions entertained in New-Jersey upon the question of jurisdiction, will be found on referring to the correspondence between the commissioners of the two States, in the year 1827. (Senate Journal of the year 1828, Appendix A.) When all efforts for an amicable adjustment had unfortunately failed, the distinguished gentlemen who composed the commission on the part of New-Jersey, in their note of September 15, 1827, submitted to the commissioners on the part of this State, "the expediency of referring the decision of the controversy to some indifferent and impartial tribunal." And in their note of September 17, they say in relation to that proposition—"we alluded particularly to the supreme court of the United States, as the tribunal to whose consideration and judgment, we confidently believe the State of New-Jersey would submit the controversy." Had it been supposed by the commissioners on the part of New-Jersey, that the supreme court of the United States could exercise a compulsory jurisdiction in the premises, there would have been no occasion for asking this State to submit the controversy to that forum.

I have not been able to learn that this proceeding has in any way been brought to the notice of the court; and it ought not therefore to be regarded as carrying with it the sanction of that high tribunal.

I shall cheerfully comply with such instructions as your Excellency, or the Legislature, may think proper to give in relation to this subject.

I am Sir, with great respect,

Your obedient humble servant,

GREENE C. BRONSON, Att'y-Gen.

His Excellency Governor THROOP.

(NO. II.)

Albany, December 14, 1829.

Sir,

Previous to the time of entering upon the duties of my office, Mr. John Jacob Astor, and his associates, had accepted the terms of compromise offered by the acts of the years 1827 and 1828, relative to certain lands in the counties of Putnam and Dutchess, and had selected five suits to be tried as a test of the claim, pursuant to the provisions of those acts.

At the last May term of the circuit of the United States for the southern district of New-York, those suits were noticed for trial, but in consequence of the falling through of the term, no trial was had.

The causes were again noticed for the late October circuit, and one of the suits (against James Carver) was tried, and a verdict was therein found for the plaintiff. Upon this trial, in addition to several questions of law, upon the construction and legal effect of the controverted deed under which the plaintiff made his title, a great number of questions were made by the counsel for the defence, and decided by the judge, upon the admissibility and legal effect of other evidence given in the cause: and exceptions were taken on the part of the defendant, with the view to a writ of error.

Until the questions upon the rules of evidence should be passed upon by the court of review, it seemed little less than a waste of time and expense to proceed with the remaining four trials. It was therefore proposed on the part of the defence, and acceded to on the part of Mr. Astor, that the remaining suits should not be tried until the various exceptions taken upon the trial against James Carver, should have been reviewed: that a bill of exceptions should be immediately prepared in that suit, and a writ of error be brought to the supreme court of the United States: and that the counsel for both parties should unite in an application to that court to hear the argument at the next term, with the view to an early decision. And all the necessary measures have been taken to carry that arrangement into full effect.

The question of improvements mentioned in the acts above referred to, was presented to the court in the form of a suggestion on the record; and with the assent of both parties, was decided by the court, (without argument, and without the expression of any opinion upon its merits,) to the end that it might be in a condition for the judgment of the appellate court.

It must be obvious to every one that the acts in question were highly favorable to Mr. Astor, inasmuch as the trial of five suits was to determine his right, instead of the great expense of time and money which he must otherwise have incurred in proceeding against each of the several hundred tenants upon the land in controversy. Yet a use has been made of this liberality on the part of the State, which, I am satisfied, was never contemplated by the Legislature. Those acts were read to the jury on the late trial against James Carver; and although the jury were instructed by the court that the State had admitted nothing in favor of the claims by those acts, they may still have had an influence in producing a verdict for the plaintiff.

Other evidence was given by the plaintiff to prove that the suit was defended by the State: and it is difficult to understand what was the object of giving such evidence, unless it were to induce a more favorable consideration of the plaintiff's case by the jury, than it would otherwise have been entitled to receive. Exceptions were taken to the decisions of the court admitting this evidence and the acts of the Legislature; and those questions are consequently in a condition to be received by the high tribunal which is finally to pass upon the rights of the parties.

It may not be improper to say, that this trial, although it terminated in favor of the plaintiff, has not tended in any degree to satisfy the counsel for the defence of the validity of the claim of Mr. Astor and his associates.

I am very respectfully,
Your obedient humble servant,
GREENE C. BRONSON, Att'y-Gen.

Mr. Halcott, from the select committee on the application of the judges, district attorney, sheriff, and clerk of Delaware county, reported :

That by the existing law, a court of common pleas and general sessions is appointed to be held on the first Monday of February, June and October; but a grand jury is to be summoned only at the October term. By a late appointment of the circuit judges, courts of oyer and terminer are to be held in May and September. It would therefore seem proper that the grand jury for the general sessions should be summoned for the February term. The committee ask leave to introduce the bill prepared by the petitioners for that purpose.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Halcott, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act concerning the county courts of the county of Delaware;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Livingston, from the select committee to which was referred the memorial of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New-York, relative to the line of West-street in said city, reported :

That according to the formation of West-street as established by law, the easterly line thereof, when made, would be one hundred and eighty feet distant from the westerly line of Washington-street at the Albany basin, and only one hundred and twenty feet at the termination of said street. The owners of property between the points above mentioned, have applied to the corporation of the city for an alteration in the plan, so that West-street may run parallel to Washington-street, south of the Albany basin. An examination of the facts set forth in the memorial, induce the belief on the part of the committee, that the proposed alteration would be a benefit to that part of the city, especially with reference to the permanent arrangement of the wharves, piers and slips. The committee have prepared a bill, giving to the corporation the power to carry the said alteration into effect, whenever it shall be deemed expedient: which said bill they now ask leave to introduce.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Livingston, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act relative to the line of West-street, between the Albany basin and Battery place, (late Marketsfield-street,) in the city of New-York;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Livingston, from the select committee to which was referred the memorial of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New-York, relative to the laws for the collection of taxes and assessments in said city, reported:

That according to the existing laws relative to the collection of taxes and assessments in the city of New-York, no authority is given to the corporation to postpone sales of lands for taxes, after such sales have been advertised. The committee think it expedient to extend to the owners of property so taxed, frequent indulgence, in consequence of occasional depression in the value of real estate; and they have therefore proposed a law, giving to the corporation of the city of New-York full power for that purpose. And the committee would point to the necessity of an immediate passage of this law; inasmuch as a sale of very extensive real estate is advertised for the 18th instant, (January,) which, owing to the present depressed value of real estate, it becomes expedient to postpone to a more favorable period. The committee also deem it important to diminish the expenses incident to such sales, by authorising the common council to conduct them by their own officers; thereby saving to the owners the charges resulting from the employment of an auctioneer.

The committee would also state, that the law requires that taxes and assessments shall be paid to the city treasurer or chamberlain; which practically has been found exceedingly inconvenient, and imposes an unfit duty upon that officer. Such payment should be made to an officer appointed for the purpose, and who should keep the books and papers necessary to enable him to perform such duty correctly.

The committee have prepared a bill, embodying their proposed amendments; which they ask leave to introduce.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Livingston, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to amend an act passed April 12th, 1816, entitled 'An act for the more effectual collection of taxes and assessments in the city of New-York;'" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. J. Hall, from the committee to whom was referred the petitions of the members of the bar of the county of Onondaga, reported :

That since the circuit courts in and for the county were appointed, the terms of the supreme court have been altered, by means of which the circuit as now appointed, immediately succeeds the term of the supreme court. That it also will be very near the term of the court of common pleas, so much so as to be very inconvenient.—The committee have the consent of the circuit judge to a change of the said circuit and oyer and terminer. That on examination of the law of last session, appointing four terms for the court of common pleas and general sessions for that county, the committee find that it does not in terms repeal the section of the Revised Statutes which it was intended to do ; that it is a matter of strong doubt whether there are not now by law six terms a year of said court, although it was intended there should be but four. The committee further would remark, that since the number of appeals are by the Revised Statutes so much reduced, they are convinced that three terms of the court will be sufficient for all the business of the county.

They have therefore prepared a bill for the purpose of altering the said courts, and instructed their chairman to ask leave to present the same.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

That on the 17th day of October 1828, an act was passed, authorising the board of supervisors of said county to raise and appropriate a sum not exceeding ten thousand dollars, for the purchase of one or more tracts of land, and for the erection of buildings thereon for the accommodation of the poor of said county : That in pursuance of said act, said board of supervisors purchased a valuable farm, and have erected pretty extensive buildings thereon ; in which purchase and erections, they have expended and incurred claims against said county, amounting in the aggregate to about twelve thousand dollars : That the buildings already erected, are entirely insufficient for the accommodation of the poor of said county ; and that the additional sum of five thousand dollars will be necessary to erect such additional buildings as the necessary comfort of said paupers requires.

The committee thereupon beg leave to introduce a bill, authorising said sum to be raised.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Vanderpoel, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act authorising the supervisors of Columbia county to raise an additional sum of money, to pay for the poor-house of said county;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Ordered, That the clerk deliver the said bill to the acting Governor.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the resolution heretofore offered by Mr. W. K. Fuller; the same was again read, in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, (if the Senate concur herein,) That the sale of lands advertised by the surveyor-general to be sold on the 15th day of January instant, for arrears of interest, be postponed until the first Monday in June next; and that the surveyor-general cause the usual public notice to be given of such postponement; and that all expenses already incurred in advertising, or that may hereafter be incurred in postponing the sale of said lands, shall be paid by the persons interested therein.

Ordered, That the usual number of copies of the same be printed for the use of the Legislature.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Davenport, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled " An act to authorise the supervisors of Westchester county to raise an additional sum, to complete their poor-house establishment ;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. M. F. Sheppard, from the select committee to which was referred the petition of inhabitants of the counties of Steuben and Yates, praying a repeal of the law prohibiting fishing with seines in Little and Mud lakes, passed January 16th, 1824, reported :

That they have had said petition under consideration. The petitioners state that the act now serves to favor those persons who are regardless of the law, and to the injury of those only who would wish to observe the laws of their country : That the circumference and depth of the waters in said lakes will sufficiently warrant the preservation of the fish therein from being destroyed or much lessened in numbers, by any use that can be made with seines, or in any other way of taking them ; and notwithstanding the several and various means by which they are caught, said lakes remain richly stored with fish, and not in any respect materially diminished ; and that those inestimable privileges are given for the benefit of all, and not for a few only. To which opinion your committee subscribe. They have therefore prepared a bill, and directed their chairman to ask leave to introduce the same.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Sheppard, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to repeal an act, entitled 'An act to prohibit the fishing with seines in Little and Mud Lakes ;'" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Cady, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that they have examined the engrossed bill entitled "An act relative to the circuit and court of oyer and terminer, and the county courts of the county of Onondaga," and that the same is correctly engrossed.

Thereupon,

The said engrossed bill, entitled "An act relative to the circuit and court of oyer and terminer, and the county courts of the county of Onondaga," was read the third time.

Resolved, That the bill do pass.

Ordered, That the clerk deliver the said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

Mr. Weed gave notice that he would, on some future day, ask leave to introduce a bill regulating sales by auction, in the village of Rochester.

In pursuance of previous notice, Mr. Davenport asked for and obtained leave to bring in a bill, entitled "An act to alter the time of the annual meeting of the board of supervisors of the county of Westchester ;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Curtis gave notice that he would, on some future day, introduce a bill, extending certain provisions of the revised laws to the superior court of the city of New-York.

A communication from the joint committee appointed for the purpose of examining the accounts of the treasurer, was read. [See Document No. 14.]

Ordered, That the said communication be referred to the committee of ways and means, and that the usual number of copies thereof be printed for the use of the Legislature.

A copy of a resolution of the Senate, delivered by their clerk, was read, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, (if the Assembly concur herein,) That the secretary of state be authorised and directed to deliver to the clerks of the Senate and Assembly, in addition to the number now authorised by law, thirty sets of the Revised Statutes of this State, ten copies to be delivered to the clerk of the Senate, and twenty copies to the clerk of the Assembly, for the use of the two houses ; and for which the said clerks shall respectively give receipts to the secretary of state, upon delivery.

Thereupon,

Ordered, That this House do concur with the Senate in their preceding resolution.

Ordered, That the clerk deliver a copy of the preceding resolution of concurrence to the Senate.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to authorise the supervisors of Westchester county to raise an additional sum, to complete their poor-house establishment;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Lush, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the House, and he read the report in his place, and delivered the same in at the table, where it was again read, and agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That the bill be engrossed.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to alter the time of the annual meeting of the board of supervisors of the county of Westchester;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Davis, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the House, and he read the report in his place, and delivered the same in at the table, where it was again read, and agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That the bill be engrossed.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to repeal an act entitled 'An act to prohibit the fishing with seines in Little and Mud lakes;'" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Bradish, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the House, and he read the report in his place, and delivered the same in at the table, where it was again read.

Ordered, That the report of the committee of the whole be laid upon the table.

And then the House adjourned until eleven o'clock on Monday morning next.

MONDAY, JANUARY 11, 1830.

The petition of the independent veteran corps of artillery in the city of New-York, praying for the passage of an act to extend them the same privileges and immunities which have been granted to the brigade of artillery in the city of New-York, so long as they shall continue organized, and shall perform the other duties enjoined by their present constitution, was read, and referred to the committee on the militia and the public defence.

New-Stockbridge, Madison county, was read, and referred to the committee on public lands.

The petition of Allen Hills, praying for the passage of a law authorising the transfer of a sum of money paid to the Comptroller, on lots No. 4 and 5, of Oneida Castleton, to lot No. 224 on the Oneida reservation, was read, and referred to the committee on public lands.

The petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Oswego, praying for the incorporation of a bank, to be located at the village of Oswego, was read, and referred to the committee on the incorporation and alteration of the charters of banking and insurance companies.

The petition of John G. Rohr, praying for the passage of an act to authorize the raising of a corps of military engineers, to be attached to the first division of artillery of this state, was read, and referred to the committee on the militia and the public defence.

The petition of Stephen Sewell, of Montreal, in the province of Lower Canada, and Jane his wife, in behalf of their children therein named, praying that they may be authorised to hold certain real estate devised to them by James Caldwell, deceased, was read, and referred to the committee on the petitions of aliens.

Mr. Stephens, from the committee on the judiciary, to which was referred the petition for an alteration of the terms of the courts of common pleas of the county of Cortland, asked leave to report by bill.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Stephens, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to alter the time for holding the courts of common pleas and general sessions in the county of Cortland;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Bogert, from the select committee to which was referred the petition of William Coxhead, and also the petition of Jonathan Thomas Patten, respectively praying for a change of their names, reported :

That these two cases appear to be similar. In both, as appears from the petitions themselves, as well as from other information furnished the committee, the petitioners are devisees of property, under the wills of relatives, upon the condition of their changing their names. Under these circumstances, the committee are of opinion that the prayer of the petitioners is reasonable, and ought to be granted. They have accordingly prepared a bill for that purpose, which they now ask leave to introduce.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Bogert, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act changing the names of William Coxhead and Jonathan Thomas Patten ;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Stephens, from the select committee to which was referred the petition of William Elder and others, to change the name of the town of Cortlandville in the county of Cortland, reported :

That a village situated within said town, has been known by the name of Cortland village since the erection of said county : That the post-office at the same place, is named Cortland village post-office : And that the repetition of the same name, or nearly the same, so frequently, in designating localities which are contiguous although distinct, is productive of confusion, and without care, may occasionally lead to mistakes of importance. The committee would also suggest, that the word vile would seem to indicate a mansion, village, or other small collection of houses, and is not strictly applicable as designating a town. The committee, from the foregoing considerations, are of opinion that the prayer of the petitioners should be granted, and therefore ask leave to introduce a bill.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Stephens, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to alter the name of the town of Cortlandville," which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Fitch, from the select committee, to which was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of the towns of Perry and Castile, in the county of Genesee, praying for the passage of an act for the preservation of fish in certain waters, reported :

That they have examined the petition, and are of the opinion that no legislative enactment is necessary for the attainment of its object, which is the preservation of fish in certain waters, situate in the county of Genesee. By the late Revised Statutes, part first, chapter twenty, title eleven, section fifteen, it is provided, that "the courts of common pleas in the several counties of this state, shall have power to regulate the fishing in any of the streams, ponds or lakes in their respective counties, and to make such order and rule to prevent the destruction of fish therein, as they shall deem proper," which, in the opinion of the committee, fully provides for the objects of the petition. The committee would, therefore, beg leave to introduce the following resolution :

Resolved, That the select committee to whom was referred the petition of the inhabitants of the towns of Perry and Castile, praying for the passage of an act for the preservation of fish in certain waters, be discharged from the further consideration of the subject, and that the petitioners have leave to withdraw their petition.

Thereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the house would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Fox, from the select committee, to whom was referred the petition of Nicholas Roosevelt, jun., supervisor of the town of Johnsburgh, in the county of Warren, praying that an act may be passed authorising the said town to sell and convey a certain lot of land, for the use of the poor of said town, reported :

That the petitioner alleges that the overseers of the poor of said town purchased a lot of land some years ago, to enable said town the better to support their poor. That since the passing the act, entitled "An act to provide for the establishing of county poor-houses," the property in its present situation is useless, and they therefore pray that an act may be passed, authorising the overseers of the poor of said town to sell and convey the same, and that the avails may be applied to their benefit, in extinguishing so much of their poor tax as falls to the proportion of said town.

The committee have examined the facts set forth, and believe them to be true, and are of opinion that the prayer of the petitioner ought to be granted. They have therefore instructed their chairman to prepare a bill, and ask leave to present the same.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Fox, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to authorise the overseers of the poor of the town of Johnsburgh, in the county of Warren, to sell and convey a certain lot of land;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Fitch, from the select committee, to which was referred the petition of the supervisors of Genesee county, and others, praying for the passage of an act to ratify and confirm the purchase and sale of real estate therein mentioned, reported :

That on the 18th day of November, 1820, James Williams, treasurer of Genesee county, recovered in the court of common pleas of that county, a judgment of $1,379 45, against Richard Smith, one of the petitioners, for the benefit of said county. Mr. Smith, at the time this judgment was recovered, was seised in fee of certain lands mentioned and described by metes and bounds in the petition. On the 13th day of January, 1827, all the real estate of Mr. Smith, being the same which is described in the petition, was sold at public sale by William R. Thompson, sheriff of Genesee, under and by virtue of a fieri facias issued upon the judgment mentioned above. James Taggart and Thomas Cooley, as the agents and for the benefit of the supervisors of Genesee county, became the purchasers of these lands, for a sum equal to the amount of the judgment, interest and costs. The land not having been redeemed within the time by law allowed for the redemption thereof, either by the defendant in the execution, Mr. Smith, or any judgment creditor, on the 12th day of August, 1828, William R. Thompson, sheriff of Genesee county, executed a deed of the same to the supervisors of said county, and their successors in office. On the 15th day of November, 1828, the supervisors of said county, at their annual meeting, executed a deed of conveyance of part of the lands sold upon the execution, as above stated, to William Davis, and on the same day the supervisors executed a deed of conveyance of another part of said lands, to Jonathan Lay, in trust for Almira Smith, one of the petitioners, and wife of the said Richard Smith, in consideration that she would release her right of dower to all the lands sold upon the execution, which she did accordingly. On the 14th day of November, 1829, the supervisors of Genesee county, at their annual meeting, executed a deed of conveyance of another part of said lands to Moses Taggart; and on the same day, the said supervisors executed another deed of conveyance of the remaining part of said lands to Timothy Fitch.

The petition was signed by all the supervisors of Genesee county, at their annual meeting in November 1829, and it was subsequently signed by William Davis, Jonathan Lay, Richard Smith, Almira

Smith, Moses Taggart and Timothy Fitch, being all the persons interested in the several conveyances before mentioned. The committee are of the opinion that the supervisors had no authority in law to make these conveyances, but it seems to have been for the interest not only of the supervisors, but also of all the parties interested in these conveyances, that they should have been made at the several times mentioned above, and that to have delayed them till they could have been authorised by a special act of the legislature, would have been detrimental to all the parties interested therein.

The object and prayer of the petition is to procure a legislative enactment to ratify and confirm these several conveyances. The committee are fully satisfied that the prayer of the petitioners should be granted, and for this purpose beg leave to introduce a bill.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Fitch, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to confirm and ratify the purchase and sale of certain real estate in the county of Genesee;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Mack, from the select committee, to which was referred the petition of Ira Tillotson, reported :

That the petitioner is the owner of a lot of land on the east shore of the Cayuga lake, in the town of Ithaca, and county of Tompkins; that the water of said lake, opposite to and in the vicinity of said lot, is at certain seasons of the year so shallow as to render it difficult for loaded boats to come within one or two hundred feet of the shore. And for the convenience of boats in the discharge of their freight, the petitioner proposes to construct a good and sufficient wharf; provided he can be authorised so to do, and to receive a reasonable compensation from persons using the same. Conceiving that there can be no objections to granting the prayer of the petitioner, but that the proposed wharf would be a public accommodation, the committee ask leave to introduce a bill.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Mack, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act authorising Ira Tillotson to construct a wharf on the shore of the Cayuga lake;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Cady, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that they have examined the engrossed bill entitled "An act to alter the time of the annual meeting of the board of supervisors of the county of Westchester," and the engrossed bill entitled "An act to authorise the supervisors of Westchester county to raise an additional sum, to complete their poor-house establishment;" and find the same correctly engrossed.

Thereupon,

The said engrossed bill, entitled "An act to alter the time of the annual meeting of the board of supervisors of the county of Westchester," was read the third time.

Resolved, That the bill do pass.

The said engrossed bill, entitled "An act to authorise the supervisors of Westchester county to raise an additional sum, to complete their poor-house establishment," was read the third time.

Resolved, That the bill do pass.

Ordered, That the clerk deliver the said bills to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

A copy of a resolution of the Senate, delivered by their clerk, was read, informing that they have concurred with this House in its resolution of Friday last, postponing the sale of lands advertised by the surveyor-general for the 15th instant, for arrears of interest, until the first Monday in June next.

A message from the Senate, delivered by their clerk, with the bill therin mentioned, was read, informing that they have passed the bill entitled "An act relative to the courts of common pleas and general sessions in and for the county of Columbia," with the amendment therewith delivered.

The said bill and amendment were read; and the amendment having been again read and concurred in,

Ordered, That the clerk deliver the said bill and amendment to the Senate, and inform them that this House have concurred with them in their amendment to the said bill, and have amended the same accordingly.

A communication from the Comptroller, was received and read.
[See Document No. 20.]

Ordered, That the said report be laid upon the table.

Ordered, That the usual number of copies of the same be printed for the use of the Legislature.

A message from the Senate, delivered by their clerk, with the bill therein mentioned, was read, informing that they have passed the bill entitled "An act concerning the supreme court clerk's office in the town of Utica;" in which bill they request the concurrence of this House.

The said bill was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and referred to a select committee, consisting of Mr. Robinson, Mr. Vanderpoel and Mr. Stephens, to consider and report thereon.

Mr. Quackenboss gave notice, that he would, on some future day, ask leave to introduce a bill altering the time of holding the terms of the court of common pleas in the county of Greene.

Mr. R. L. Smith gave notice, that he would, on some future day, ask leave to bring in a bill relative to William L. Perce, a debtor imprisoned upon mesne process in the gaol of the county of Cayuga, at the suit of the people of this state, and also for the relief and indemnity of the county of Cayuga.

On motion of Mr. P. C. Fuller,

Resolved, That the Comptroller submit to this house a statement of the balances due, on the 1st day of June last, from each of the treasurers of the respective counties in this state.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to alter the time for holding the courts of common pleas and general sessions in the county of Cortland;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Fox, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the House, and he read the report in his place, and delivered the same in at the table, where it was again read, and agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That the bill be engrossed.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to authorise the overseers of the poor of the town of Johnsburgh in the county of Warren, to sell and convey a certain lot of land;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Hall, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the House, and he read the report in his place, and delivered the same in at the table, where it was again read, and agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That the bill be engrossed.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to confirm and ratify the purchase and sale of certain real estate in the county of Genesee;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Paige, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the House, and he read the report in his place, and delivered the same in at the table, where it was again read, and agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That the bill be engrossed.

Ordered, That the bill be engrossed.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act authorising Ira Tillotson to construct a wharf on the shore of the Cayuga lake;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Bradish, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the House, and he read the report in his place, and delivered the same in at the table, where it was again read, and ordered to be laid upon the table.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to alter the name of the town of Cortlandville;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. R. L. Smith, from the said committee, reported progress, and asked for and obtained leave to sit again.

And then the House adjourned until eleven o'clock to-morrow morning.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1830.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

The petition of sundry distillers, inhabitants of the county of Oneida, praying for an amendment to the revised statutes, in relation to the inspection of distilled spirits in the city of New-York, was read, and referred to the committee on trade and manufactures.

The petition of Thomas Atkinson and others, aliens, praying for the passage of an act authorising them to hold and convey real estate, was read, and referred to the committee on the petitions of aliens.

The petition of the president, directors and company of the Bank of America in the city of New-York, praying for a renewal of its charter, was read, and referred to the committee on the incorporation and alteration of the charters of banking and insurance companies.

The petition of William Bard and others, praying for the passage of a law to incorporate a company in the city of New-York, with power to make insurances on lives, grant annuities, and receive money in trust, was read, and referred to the committee on the incorporation and alteration of the charters of banking and insurance companies.

The petition of the supervisors of the county of Steuben, praying for an amendment of the law in relation to the assessment of non-resident lands, for the improvement of highways, in such manner as that all such lands may be assessed equitably, was read, and referred to the committee on the establishment and improvement of roads and bridges, and the incorporation of turnpike companies.

Mr. Noble, from the committee on the erection and division of towns and counties, to which was referred the petition of the inhabitants of the town of Homer, in the county of Cortland, and also the petition of the inhabitants of the town of Richmond, in the county of Ontario, reported :

That they have had the subject of these petitions under consideration, and it appears that the petitioners, in the cases above stated, ask the passage of a law to repeal the laws passed at the last session of the Legislature, the one to divide the said town of Homer, and to erect a new town therefrom, to be known by the name of Cortlandville, passed April 11th, 1829; which said act does not take effect until the first day of February next; and the other, to divide the said town of Richmond, in the county of Ontario, and to erect a new town therefrom, to be known by the name of Canadice, passed April 15th, 1829, and does not take effect until the 1st day of April next. By reference to section 4, title 6, chapter 2, of the first part of the Revised Statutes, it is provided, that no town is to be divided or altered, or no new town erected, unless notice of such intended application to the Legislature shall have been posted up, and also read at the town-meetings of all the towns to be affected by such alteration, &c. It does not appear that such notice has been given in either of the cases above named; and the committee are unanimously of the opinion, that such notice is indispensably necessary, and therefore beg leave to offer the following resolution :

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioners ought not to be granted, and that they have leave to withdraw their petition.

Ordered, That the said resolution be laid upon the table.

Mr. Cargill, from the committee on the petitions of aliens, to which was referred the petition of Robert Ferguson and accompanying documents, praying for an act confirming his title to certain real estate in the city of New-York, reported :

That from the facts set forth in the petition, and from other testimony presented to the committee, it appears that the petitioner, and his brother William Ferguson, arrived in this country in the year 1822, and soon after commenced business as manufacturers of domestic goods in the vicinity of New-York : that by a successful course of industry, they became possessed of considerable property, which they jointly invested in certain houses and lots in the city of New-York : that soon after their arrival in this state, both the petitioner and his brother William, formally declared their intention of becoming citizens of the United States, according to the act of Congress on that subject. It also appears to the committee, that the petitioner has since become a citizen, by his certificate of naturalization exhibited to the committee. But that the said William Ferguson returned to his native country before the time when by law he would be entitled to his certificate of naturalization. It further appears to the committee, that previous to the departure of the said William Ferguson, he executed to his brother, the petitioner, a deed of all his interest in the property in question ; the title to which the petitioner now prays may, by an act of the Legislature, be confirmed to him. The committee deeming the prayer of the petitioner both equitable in itself, and in conformity with the spirit of former enactments on this subject, are of opinion that the same should be granted, and have accordingly instructed their chairman to ask leave to introduce a bill for that purpose.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Cargill, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act for the relief of Robert Ferguson," which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Stilwell, from the committee on the incorporation of charitable and religious societies, on the petition of the New-York gas workmen's friendly society, praying for an act of incorporation, asked leave to report by bill.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Stilwell, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to incorporate the New-York gas workmen's friendly society ;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Gosman, from the committee on public lands, to which was referred the petition of Jonathan Alexander, reported :

That it appears that the petitioner was entitled to the right of pre-emption of two certain lots or parcels of land in the tract ceded to the people of this State by the Stockbridge Indians : that he made application to the Legislature at its last session, and that by an act passed February 5th, 1829, all the relief which he prayed for was designed to have been afforded to him. His right of pre-emption was by the terms of that act extended, on certain conditions, to six months from the date of its passage. Through an error into which the petitioner was led, by the person who communicated to him the result of his application, (as appears by an affidavit accompanying the petition,) he did not attempt to avail himself of the act until two days after the said term of six months had expired ; and he now solicits a revival of that act for a very short time, and the correction of an error as to the quantity of land in one of those lots. As the land remains unsold, and the interest will be continued unto the time of payment, no injury can accrue to the state ; and the committee, deeming the application very reasonable, have prepared a bill, which they ask leave to introduce.

Ordered, That leave be given to bring in such bill.

Mr. Gosman, according to leave, brought in the said bill, entitled " An act to amend the act, passed February 5th, 1829, entitled ' An act to amend the act, entitled ' An act for the disposal of lands ceded to the people of this state,' passed March 12, 1823 ;' which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Granger, from the committee on grievances, to whom was referred the petition of Eleanor Feeck, reported :

That the petitioner represents that she is the owner and occupant of one hundred acres of land, part of lot 37 in the township of Sterling, in the county of Cayuga ; which was granted to her in the year 1822, as bounty land, for services rendered by her father during the revolutionary war ; and upon which she has not resided, until within the last three years.

The petitioner further represents, that she has always paid all state and county taxes on said land ; but that by reason of the non-payment of a tax assessed thereon, under a law of this State, entitled " An act to lay out and improve certain roads therein mentioned," passed 22d March 1822, which assessment was unknown to the petitioner, fifteen acres of said land were sold according to the provisions of said act ; and that the same were, on the 28th of August 1827, conveyed to one Peter Smith, for the sum of twelve dollars and forty cents : That the said Smith refuses to release said land, unless he shall receive the sum of ninety dollars ; which amount the petitioner represents that she is unable to pay, and asks that it may be paid from the State treasury.

The case here presented, does not, in the opinion of the committee, differ from thousands that have arisen under sales made by the comptroller, pursuant to laws for the assessment and collection of various descriptions of taxes. It is not pretended that there has been any negligence on the part of the State officers ; that a single requirement of the law has not been fulfilled, or that the purchaser has claimed any thing not legally secured to him by his deed. The facts present a common case of assessment, advertisement, sale and conveyance, without the knowledge of the owner ; which, however loudly it may address itself to the generosity of the purchaser, cannot, in the opinion of the committee, present a proper claim to legislative interference. They have therefore directed their chairman to offer the following resolution :

Thereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

1. The bank shall consist of five thousand shares of one hundred dollars each, making a capital of five hundred thousand dollars.
2. The State shall own one thousand, and individuals four thousand, shares.
3. The State may pay for its shares in three per cent stock at par, to be created for that purpose, and redeemable at the pleasure of government.
4. The State shall appoint one director, not being a stockholder, who shall be paid a salary. He shall, in addition to the ordinary powers of a director, have the right to examine every book, paper, account and minute of the bank, and every person on oath, in relation to every matter and thing appertaining to its concerns, and shall report the results from time to time, and as often as required, to the Comptroller.
5. The State may appoint one other director, who may be a stockholder, and shall have the same power as other directors.
6. The Comptroller shall, as often as he may require, be furnished with statements of the debts, dues and deposits, of the bills in circulation, and of the specie on hand, and shall have the right to inspect all books, accounts and minutes in relation to the same.
7. No bank shall be chartered during the continuance of this incorporation, on more favorable terms: If it should, those terms shall forthwith enure to the benefit of this bank.
8. This bank, as such, shall not be taxed; but the stock in the hands of individuals, may be taxed as other property.
9. The amount of debts which the bank shall at any time owe, over and above deposits, shall not exceed the sum of five hundred thousand dollars, unless specially authorised by law: In case of excess, the directors under whose administration it shall happen, shall be liable for the same.
10. In case of the failure of the bank, the receiver appointed by the chancellor, may sell the said three per cent stock, and apply the proceeds to the fund for distribution.
11. On winding up the concerns of the bank, the State is bound to take three per cent stock at par, for its share of the capital stock.

Resolved, That the committee to which was referred that part of the Governor's message relating to banks, do inquire into the expediency of chartering and renewing the charters of banks upon the following principles:

3. If any stockholder or any officer of the bank shall, directly or indirectly, obtain a discount or credit at the bank, it shall, for the purpose of discounting and loaning money, be considered as a withdrawal of the operative capital of the bank to the amount thus obtained, so long as such loan is continued, so that the operative capital shall be the balance of the available capital then on hand over the amount thus loaned or discounted.

4. No stockholder shall draw from the bank more in amount than the stock he owns, and no note shall be discounted on which the name of a director or other officer of the bank appears as endorser.

5. No real estate, and no notes on which the interest has not been paid for six months, shall be considered operative capital.

7. No funds of the bank shall be pledged, assigned, or in any manner transferred, except to redeem bills.

8. No bills or other funds shall be issued without the concurrence of the cashier; but he shall not have a veto against the orders of the directors, unless such order would tend to violate a provision of this act.

9. The cashier shall not be interested in the bank.

10. Any violation of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed a forfeiture of the charter; and the directors and cashier shall be liable for all the debts of the bank.

11. The directors, cashier, and all of the officers of the bank, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe an affidavit, to observe the provisions of this act; the affidavit to be filed in the clerk's office.

12. The cashier to give security to the amount of ten per cent on the capital, by bond, with two or more sureties who are not interested in any bank; the bond to be in the name of the People of this State, and conditioned that the bank shall not violate any provision of this law while he remains cashier thereof; to be entered into before an officer authorised to take special bail in the supreme court, residing in the county where the bank is located; the district attorney of the county having notice of the time and place where the bail will justify, and whose duty it shall be to attend and see that the bail are sufficient, he shall take the bond and file the same in the clerk's office of the county, and shall, at least once a year, examine into the circumstances of the bail; if the bail is found deficient, and the cashier do not offer additional within ten days, the district attorney shall apply for an injunction.

Mr. Gosman, from the committee on public lands, to which was referred the petition of Ezra Pardee and others, praying that the right of pre-emption to a lot in the tract ceded by the Stockbridge Indians, may be granted to said Pardee, reported :

Mr. Sanford, from the committee on the establishment and improvement of roads and bridges, and the incorporation of turnpike companies, to which was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of the towns of New-Paltz and Shawangunk, reported :

That the petitioners pray for the passage of a law authorising the assessment and collection of twelve hundred dollars from the inhabitants of the towns of New-Paltz and Shawangunk in the county of Ulster, for the purpose of erecting a bridge over the Shawangunk kill, at the village of Inthilltown, on the line of the said towns. The present bridge is represented as being in such a condition as to endanger the safety of the traveller, and as to require immediate re-building. The old bridge was put up by private contribution, but viewing it as a matter of public concernment, being on the main road leading from Albany to Goshen, it has been deemed more equitable by the citizens of those towns, that the expense of re-building should be borne by the inhabitants of those towns generally, by a local tax.

A certificate of the commissioners of highways of Shawangunk and New-Paltz accompanies the petition, expressive of their opinion as to the necessity of re-building the bridge, and as to the amount of money necessary for that purpose. Due notice of their intention to apply to the legislature for the passage of the law has been given, and as the prayer of the petitioners appears reasonable, the committee have instructed their chairman to ask leave to introduce a bill.

That the county clerk in said county of Steuben sets forth in his petition, that the seal of the court of common pleas of said county has been taken from his office and concealed, and that he has no reason to suspect any particular person for taking the same.

That the impression of the said seal, as appears from a specimen annexed to the petition, is an indifferent one, and as the court of common pleas of said county has power only to cause a new seal to be made, similar in all respects to the former seal, and as the former seal may be in the hands of some person who may use it for improper purposes, if a new seal similar to it should be made.

The petitioner therefore asks for a law authorising him to procure a new seal, different from the one that is lost, and the committee, believing the law prayed for to be necessary and just, have prepared a bill, and directed their chairman to ask leave to introduce the same.

BLACK-ROCK, MARCH 24th, 1830.

GENTLEMEN,

I beg leave to tender through you, to the Legislature of the state of New-York, by whom the appointment was conferred, my resignation of the office of a Regent of the University, which I have had the honor to hold for several years past.

I am induced to this step, in consideration, solely, of the distance at which I reside from the seat of government, where the meetings and deliberations of the board of Regents are held; and which, I find, puts it out of my power to discharge the duties of the office in such a manner as to meet the just expectations of the public, or be satisfactory to myself.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,

P. B. PORTER.

To the President of the Senate,

E. T. THROOP.

Albany, April 20, 1830.

Ordered, That Mr. Robinson and Mr. Dickinson, wait upon the Acting Governor, and inform him that, unless he has some further business to lay before the Legislature, this House is ready to adjourn.

Ordered, That Mr. Gosman and Mr. Kirby, be a committee to wait upon the Senate, and inform them that this House is ready to adjourn.

Mr. Robinson reported, that, pursuant to the order of the House, Mr. Dickinson and himself had waited upon the Acting Governor, and informed him, that, unless he had some further business to lay before the Legislature, this House was ready to adjourn, and that the Acting Governor had been pleased to say, that he had no further communication to make to the Legislature.

Mr. Gosman reported, that, pursuant to the order of the House, Mr. Kirby and himself had waited upon the Senate, and informed them that this House was ready to adjourn.

On motion of Mr. Bradish,

Resolved unanimously, That the thanks of this House be presented to the Hon. ERASTUS Root, for the able and impartial manner in which he has presided over its deliberations, and discharged the various and arduous duties of Speaker, during the present session.

Thereupon,

His honor the Speaker made the following reply :

GENTLEMEN,

It affords me much satisfaction to receive this testimonial of your unanimous approbation of my services during the present session of the Legislature. But you will permit me rather to ascribe it to the kindlier feelings of the human heart, and to those charities which surround it, and which you so eminently possess, than to any efforts of mine. I am aware, gentlemen, that in the administration of the duties of the chair, I have failed in coming to that point which is so desirable in legislation. Weak and defective optics, added perhaps to frequent inattention, and to a want of that clearness and quickness of perception which are so necessary in a presiding officer, I am aware that I have failed in doing all that I could have desired to have done. But I hope and trust, gentlemen, that you will ascribe any omissions on my part, to these physical defects, rather than to any intention to depart from that rule of conduct which ever ought to govern a presiding officer.

Gentlemen, this session, as most other sessions, has produced collisions in transacting the business of legislation. These collisions, so natural to the human heart, frequently produce some little excitement and some little irritation. That this session has been perfectly free from these irritations, I do not pretend : but of this I am confident, that if the irritabilities of our nature have been sometimes excited, there will be on this day a reciprocal desire to pass them to oblivion—that there will be a general proclamation of amnesty.

I cordially assure you, gentlemen, that I wish you a pleasant return to the bosom of your families and friends ; and that you may have a cheerful journey through life to “that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns.”

A message from the Senate, delivered by Mr. Hubbard and Mr. Deitz, was received, informing that the Senate were ready to adjourn.

Thereupon,

Mr. Speaker adjourned the House sine die.

FRANCIS SEGER, Clerk.
